smart Urban Stage in São Paulo

The artists

Tony de Marco from São Paulo has designed more than 50 typefaces as a typographer. As a photographer, among other things he has become famous for his report "São Paulo No Logo" about São Paulo following the advertising ban. Tony de Marco also publishes the magazine Tupigrafia.

Nuria Mora lives in Madrid and her art aims to promote dialogue between urban architecture and the city's inhabitants. In 2008 she was invited by the Tate Gallery, London to take part in the festival "Street Art at Tate Modern". Nuria Mora belongs to the Spanish artists' collective "Equipo Plástico".

Superblast, also known as Manuel Osterholt, works as a graphic artist in Berlin. He has been active as a graffiti artist since 1989. He gets his inspiration from the skateboard, hip hop and punk rock scenes. Superblast prefers to work in a consortium with other artists.

Eltono originally comes from Paris and started working with graffiti in 1989, including the spraying of suburban trains. He studied Fine Arts at the University of Saint Denis, Paris and has lived in Madrid since 1999. His works are exhibited worldwide in galleries and at art festivals.

Ovni's work is characterised by the interplay between static and movement. The Spanish artist makes movement visible with shapes and in this way creates her own landscapes. Ovni comes from Barcelona and is represented across Europe in individual and group exhibitions and happenings.

Tofer Chin from Los Angeles exhibits his works internationally, for example at the White Box gallery in New York and the Reina Sofia National Museum Art Centre in Madrid. Publications such as Flaunt, Nylon, Trace, Big, Theme, and Idn publish his works. He was recently commissioned by the interior designer Kelly Wearstler to create a painting for the Viceroy Hotel in Miami.

Apo Fousek has been active in the surfer and skateboard scene for more than 20 years. He looks at the subjects of nature, animals and everyday situations in his art with the aim of encouraging self-reflection in the viewer. He lives in São Paulo and California and is currently developing his own fashion collection made of organic materials.
